National Women's History Month

During the month of March, we give a little extra attention to all of the amazing accomplishments of strong, determined women. Every woman has a story to tell and gifts to share with the world. So get ready, because this month is about honoring magnificent ladies, and we are ready to celebrate it to the fullest.

National Developmental Disabilities Awareness Month

This class of disabilities can refer to impairments in learning and behavior, such as autism, attention-deficit/hyperactivity disorder, and impairments in physical and/or intellectual functioning such as cerebral palsy, spina bifida, and Down syndrome. The campaign seeks to raise awareness about including people with developmental disabilities in all facets of community life. It also creates awareness of the difficulties that people with disabilities still face in fitting into the communities in which they live.

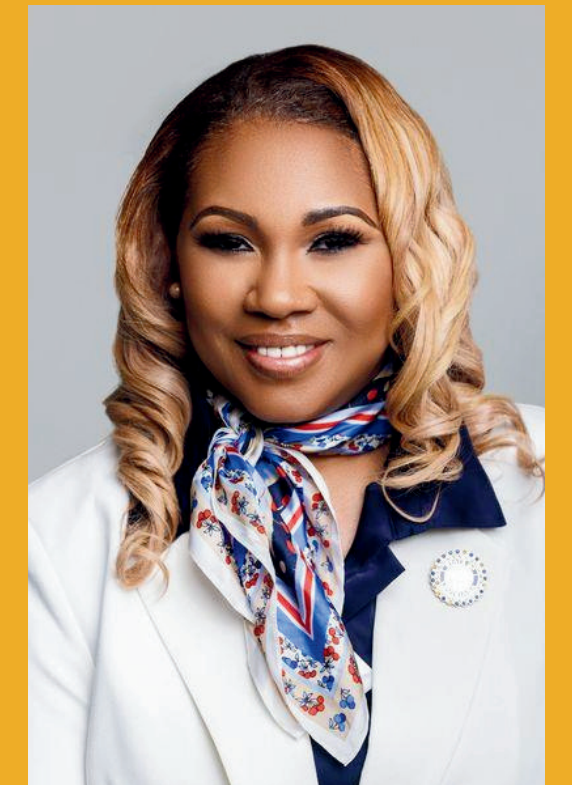

Bleeding Disorders Awareness Month

Organizations use the month of March to run programs, campaigns, and other projects focused on spreading awareness about bleeding disorders such as hemophilia, which occurs in 1 in 5,000 boys but is very rarely reported in girls. It's an opportunity for people living with these diseases to share their stories and for people to learn more about what is needed to treat and cure these conditions.

Most of her career has been in Public Health addressing social issues such as promoting Reproductive Health. Dr. Williams has intensified the organizations' efforts by building a strong infrastructure capable of meeting the challenges in the new complex health care delivery system, applying robust business principles, and fostering an environment of accountability throughout the organization.
