

Global Diversity Awareness Month

This is the time to demonstrate our commitment to diversity and inclusion. We see the value in operating with greater cross-cultural understanding in an inclusive environment and feel the diversity of our workforce.

National Disability Employment Awareness Month

This observance was launched in 1945 when Congress declared the first week in October as "National Employ the Handicapped Week." In 1998, the week was extended to a month and renamed. The annual event draws attention to employment barriers that still need to be addressed.

National Bullying Prevention Month

The campaign is held during the month of October and unites communities nationwide to educate and raise awareness of bullying and its prevention.

Italian American Heritage Month

Over 5.4 million Italians immigrated to the United States between 1820 and 1992. Today, there are over 26 million Americans of Italian descent in the United States, making them the fifth largest ethnic group. The USA was even named after an Italian, the explorer and geographer Amerigo Vespucci.

German American Heritage Month

This month honors the 300th anniversary of the arrival of 13 German families who established the first German settlement on American soil. This community on the northern outskirts of Philadelphia later came to be known as Germantown.

Philippino American Heritage Month

The first Filipinos landed in Morro Bay, California in 1587, three decades before the Pilgrims landed on Plymouth Rock. These Filipino men escaped Spanish galleon ships in route to Spain. Some Filipinos migrated in similar ways and settled in the bayous of Louisiana in 1763, giving Filipinos deep roots in the U.S.

Polish American Heritage Month

In 1608, the first Polish immigrants arrived in Jamestown, Virginia and were quickly recruited by the colony as craftsmen in the colony's glassmaking and woodworking industries. After a decade in Jamestown, the Poles still did not have the right to vote in the elections of the colonial government; thus, in 1619, they held the first labor strike in America. By walking off the job, they affected the local industry enough that voting rights were granted to them.

Breast Cancer Awareness Month

An annual international health campaign is organized by major breast cancer charities every October to increase awareness of the disease and to raise funds for research into its cause, prevention, diagnosis, treatment and cure.

World Blindness Awareness Month

According to the World Health Organization, 180 million people worldwide suffer from blindness or some form of impaired vision. Gaining understanding of the magnitude of visual impairment is important at any time of year but especially during the month of October since World Sight Day is observed in October. This observance helps shed light on the importance of vision and assistance for those without.

ADHD Awareness Month

ADHD is one of the most common childhood disorders and is a condition characterized by developmentally inappropriate levels of inattention, hyperactivity, and impulsive behavior. Individuals with attention disorders may demonstrate the following symptoms: difficulty staying focused and paying attention; daydreaming a lot; inability to listen; easily distracted from schoolwork or play; forgetful; constant motion or inability to remain seated. If these signs of ADHD are observed frequently and to a degree that is not developmentally appropriate for a child's age, seek assistance. Excessive presence of these symptoms could impair a child's ability to function in everyday life in more than one setting. ADHD is a condition that is currently addressed through various programs. Learn all about attention issues, what criteria is used to diagnose attention disorders, and how programs (such as Brain Balance) can help.

Liver Cancer Awareness Month

Liver cancer may be less well-known than other cancer types, but it is the fifth most common cancer in the world. Despite progress in other fields, liver cancer is one of the few cancers whose rate in the United States is continuing to rise. Liver cancer, medically known as hepatocellular carcinoma, is a tumor that starts in the liver and can spread to other organs if left untreated. The most common cause of liver cancer is cirrhosis or scar tissue that forms in the liver as a result of long-term damage.

Down Syndrome Awareness Month

During October, we celebrate people with Down Syndrome and create awareness of their abilities and accomplishments. It's not about celebrating disabilities, it's about celebrating abilities. We can learn all about its history and exercise the right to speak out about what it's like to have Down Syndrome—learning and sharing the real stories of these very accomplished people. Community members, those who personally experience Down Syndrome, their loved ones, and You can spread awareness about Down Syndrome and advocate by participating in a local Buddy Walk®.

Spina Bifida Awareness Month

Spina Bifida literally means "split spine." It is a type of birth defect called a neural tube defect, which occurs when the bones of the spine (vertebrae) don't form properly around part of the baby's spinal cord. Spina Bifida can be mild or severe. Although the mild form is the most common, there are other types of Spina bifida: Occult Spinal Dysraphism (OSD); Spina Bifida Occulta; Meningocele and Myelomeningocele (Meningomyelocele), which is also called Spina Bifida Cystica.

S.I.D.S Awareness Month

While the prevalence of Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS) in the United States has decreased by 50% over the last 20 years, SIDS remains the leading cause of death for U.S. infants from 1 month to 1 year of age. The National Institute of Child Health & Human Development (NICHD) celebrates 20 years of educating parents, caregivers, and health care providers. Although the exact cause of SIDS remains unclear, researchers suspect multiple conditions that might lead to SIDS and have ways to reduce a baby's risk.

LGBTQ + History Month

LGBTQ+ History Month is a month-long celebration of the history of the diverse and beautiful lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, and queer community and the importance of civil rights movements in progressing gay rights. The observance was created by Rodney Wilson, a history teacher at a Missouri high school, in 1994. The following year, LGBTQ+ History Month was added to the list of commemorative months in a resolution forwarded by the General Assembly of the National Education Association. October was chosen as the month of observance as National Coming Out Day already existed as a holiday on October 11. Also, the anniversary of the first march for gay rights in Washington took place on October 14, 1979.

- 1st National Black Dog Day Unfortunately, too many black dogs languish in shelters because people are hesitant to adopt them. Annually, October 1st seeks to change that. Black dogs are lovable! Their shiny coats are like satin, especially when you're out playing in the warm sunshine. This day encourages the adoption of dogs with darker shades. Regardless of behavior, size, breeding, personality or age, the phenomenon persists. You'll find their temperaments to be no different from their lighter colored counterparts. Black dogs fetch, play, and wag their tails just the same. They come short haired, long haired and shaggy too. Do you like a floppy-eared pup? Big paws? Little paws? Every ear, tail, bark, shape and size can be found in some beautiful shade of black. Just like dogs of other colors, Black Dogs need love too and are waiting for their forever homes!
- International Day of Non-Violence The International Day of Non-Violence is marked on October 2nd, which is also the birthday of Mahatma Gandhi, leader of the Indian independence movement and pioneer of the philosophy and strategy of non-violence. General Assembly resolution A/RES/61/271 (06/15/2007) established the commemoration, and the International Day is an occasion to "disseminate the message of non-violence...through education and public awareness". The resolution reaffirms "the universal relevance of the principle of non-violence" and the desire "to secure a culture of peace, tolerance, understanding and non-violence". India's Minister of State for External Affairs, Mr. Anand Sharma, said that the wide and diverse sponsorship of the resolution was a reflection of the universal respect for Mahatma Gandhi and of the enduring relevance of his philosophy. Quoting the late leader's own words, "Non-violence is the greatest force at the disposal of mankind. It is mightier than the mightiest weapon of destruction devised by the ingenuity of man".
- 4th National Taco Day The history of tacos predates the arrival of Europeans in Mexico. Anthropological evidence indicates that the native people who lived in the lake region of the Valley of Mexico ate tacos filled with small fish. In either hard or soft shells with a variety of fillings, tacos are eaten daily by millions. Taco Tuesday has become a well-known, well-liked weekly indulgence by young and old alike!
- World Teacher's Day World Teachers' Day (WTD) commemorates the anniversary of the adoption of the 1966 ILO/UNESCO Recommendation concerning the Status of Teachers. This Recommendation sets benchmarks regarding the rights and responsibilities of teachers and standards for their initial preparation and further education, recruitment, employment, and teaching and learning conditions. To complement the 1966 Recommendation, the Status of Higher-Education Teaching Personnel was adopted in 1997 and covered teaching and research personnel in higher education. With adoption of the Sustainable Development Goal 4 on education and the dedicated target (SDG 4.c), which recognizes teachers as key to the achievement of the Education 2030 agenda, WTD has become the occasion to mark progress and reflect on ways to counter the remaining challenges for the promotion of the teaching profession. World Teachers' Day is co-convened in partnership with UNICEF, UNDP, the International Labor Organization, and Education International.
- National Depression Screening Day Roughly 40 million adults in the U.S. struggle with depression or anxiety. Not to mention the family, friends, and coworkers that are also impacted. National Depression Screening Day is held annually on October 7. It is important for many reasons. First, it can help people make an informed diagnosis. It also drags depression out of the darkness. And perhaps most important, it can bring help to those that need it.
- 7th-15th Navaratri On the first day (pratipada) of the bright fortnight of the lunar month of Ashwin. The festival is celebrated for nine nights once every year during the beginning of October, although as the dates of the festival are determined according to the lunar calendar, the festival may be held for a day more or a day less.
- 11th National Coming Out Day For those who identify as lesbian, gay, bisexual, or transgender, this day celebrates coming out and gives recognition for the gay and lesbian equality march on Washington in 1987.
- 11th Indigenous People's Day/Native American Day This day recognizes 500 years of resistance and the continued existence of North American Indians and Indigenous people. It is celebrated across the United States and is an official city and state holiday in various localities. This day was established in 1989 in South Dakota, where Lynn Hart and Governor Mickelson backed a resolution to celebrate Native American/Indigenous People. Marking the beginning of the year of reconciliation in 1990, the honorary day takes place on the second Monday of each October.
- 13th National Stop Bullying Day National Stop Bullying Day, which is referred to by some as "Unity Day," is observed annually on the second Wednesday in October. This annual designation is designed to bring awareness of the need to stand against and put an end to bullying.
- 15th National Pregnancy & Infant Loss Remembrance Day This is a day of remembrance for pregnancy loss and infant death which includes, but is not limited to, miscarriage, still birth, SIDS or the death of a newborn. Each year, this day is observed with remembrance ceremonies and candle-lighting vigils.

- 15th Vijaydashmi/ Dusshera the 10th and the last day of Durga Puja; this year it's October 15. All over India Hindus celebrate this auspicious day in many different ways. In some parts, it's the day Goddess Durga killed the demon Mahishasur. After nine days of Navratri, the festival culminates with the immersion of the idol of Durga. This was also the day King Rama, an avatar of Vishnu, killed Ravana, the 10-headed demon. To celebrate the legend huge effigies of Ravana are burned and with it burns all evil. Vijaydashmi's the eternal promise that good will always vanquish evil.
- 15th National Mammography Day First proclaimed by President Clinton in 1993, the third Friday in October each year is National Mammography Day. On this day and throughout the month, women are encouraged to make a mammography appointment. In 2020, National Mammography Day will be celebrated on October 16th. The best defense is early detection.
- 16th Sweetest Day a day to be sweet by sharing a kind thought, a small gift or a gesture of kindness. It's a day to give a card with a sweet message to someone you appreciate. Little gifts of candy and other sweets are shared, as well.
- Mawlid Mawlid or Mawlid al-Nabi al-Sharif is the observance of the birthday of Muhammad. Along with being referred to as the celebration of the birth of Muhammad, the term Mawlid also refers to the 'text especially composed for and recited at Muhammad's nativity celebration' or "a text recited or sung on that day".
- 20th Medical Assistants Day a great time to explore this important, fast-growing career. Medical assistants provide clinical and administrative support for physicians and other medical professionals by running the front office, drawing blood, administering vaccinations, taking patients' vital signs and more.
- 24th United Nations Day October 24th is the anniversary of the founding of the United Nations (U.N.) in 1945. U.N. Day has traditionally been marked throughout the world by meetings, discussions and exhibits regarding the achievements and goals of the organization.
- National Black Cat Day Don't be superstitious! This day is National Black Cat Day, but it's all about celebrating the beauty of these sleek creatures. While this time of year black cats decorate many thresholds for Halloween and windows for spooky decor, these felines deserve love and attention just as much as their tabby counterparts. Old notions have given these furry critters a bad reputation.

 National Black Cat Day is about turning that reputation around. Unfortunately, too many black cats languish in shelters because people are hesitant to adopt them.
- 28th National First Responders Day recognizes the heroic men and women who make it their business to take immediate action when disaster strikes.
- National Immigrants Day The United States of America is known as the world's melting pot, and every year on October 28 National Immigrants Day gives us a reason to reflect on just how unique that distinction is among the world's 195 sovereign nations. As Americans, we are proud of our long history of welcoming immigrants from all parts of the world and value their contributions that add zest to our nation's blend of cultures, customs, and traditions.
- Halloween Ghouls, goblins, creatures, and strange folk creep through neighborhoods seeking favors over Trickery each October 31st. This holiday tradition has become known as Halloween. Also known as All Halloween, All Hallows' Eve or All Saints' Eve, this annual celebration is observed in numerous countries each October 31st and is the time in the liturgical year that is dedicated to remembering the deceased, including saints, martyrs, and all faithful believers who have departed.
